

Egyptian Art

What's happening in the background?

The background image is a reproduction of an ancient Egyptian wall painting. On the left, a large figure of a man stands, wearing a kilt and a broad collar, with his arms raised in a gesture of offering or praise. To his right, a horizontal register contains a row of smaller, seated figures, likely family members, each accompanied by a lotus flower. Below this register, another register of hieroglyphs is visible. The entire scene is set against a textured, aged background.

Ancient Egyptian artists decorated temples and tombs.

The scenes used were meant to remind people of the spirit of life on Earth.

What everyday scenes can you see in the following Egyptian artwork?

